

Educational Role of Language Group's Call

THEME

titles, components

'Language as Foundations of Democracy'

This Call is meant for cooperation between entities dealing with the linguistic dimension of democracy – from the perspective of various disciplines, nationalities, local contexts. We welcome to this Call various organisations that address the link between language and democracy in whatever way, degree, or place in the world.

AIMS

intended benefits

The chief main is most ambitious – to foster democracy through the dimension that tends to be neglected in discussions concerning this topic, traditionally associated with political science. Under the Call we intend to radically expand this – detrimentally narrow – perspective,

SUBSTANCE

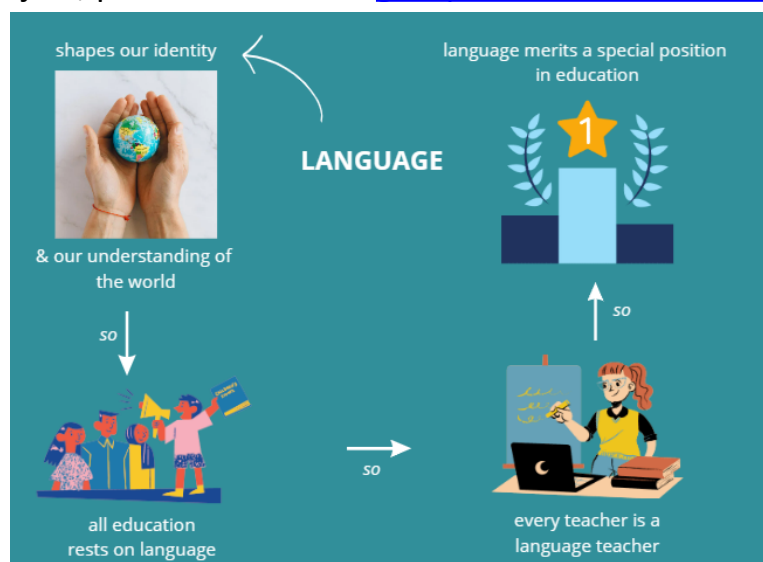

overall logic

The primary premise of the Call is that language as a key element of democracy (its formation and its solidification) is frequently taken for granted, which is not a pro-democratic approach to language per se. Democracy needs conscious reflection and balanced discussions on the language applied in the public sphere of everyday life. Real democracy remains open to various ways of describing reality, with none of the means used being superior over other possibilities.

TECHNICALITIES

dates, contacts

The Call has no closing date. It was initiated at the beginning of the year 2024 and remains open to any entities falling within ERL Paradigm. Do feel free to share this Call with any entities potentially interested in cooperation aimed at boosting the position of language. To join, please email us at group@educationalroleoflanguage.org

ERL Premises (click for the logic behind them)